

Domain Name Registration Terms and Conditions

We provide you with one free domain name registration in the International Domain Name Registry (www.yourname.com). The actual name will depend on availability - we can assist you with its selection. The domain name will be registered for a 12 month period and becomes the property of your company upon receipt of payment.

Renewals of registration are then on an annual basis at $40 per year.

Registration in the Australian registry (www.yourname.com.au) also costs $40 per annum – however registration and renewals are for a minimum 2 year period.

Additional conditions apply with registration in the Australian registry to prevent individuals or organizations intentionally "poaching" Australian company domain names. When registering you will be required to provide documentary proof such as a registered business name, ABN, or other information to verify your entitlement to the .au domain name you've selected.

Note: Whether your domain is registered in the international or the Australian registry, makes little difference to the way your website actually functions, however the .au suffix immediately denotes that you are an Australian organization. This can assist potential clients locate you when using search engines such as Google.

Some companies opt to register in both to protect their company name.
